

The Sleepers.

They are sleeping! Who are sleeping?
Children wearied by their play;
For the stars of night are peeping,
And the sun hath sunk away.
As the dew upon the blossoms,
Bow them on their slender stem—
So, as light as their own bosoms,
Balm sleep has conquered them.

They are sleeping! Who are sleeping?
Mortals, compassed round with woe,
Ereids, wearied out with weeping,
Close for very weariness now;
And that short relief from sorrow,
Harrassed nature shall sustain,
Till they wake again to-morrow,
Strengthened to contend with pain.

They are sleeping! Who are sleeping?
Captives, in their gloomy cells;
Yet sweet dreams are o'er them creeping;
With their many colored shells,
All they love—again they clasp them;
Peal again their long lost joys;
But the haste with which they grasp them,
Every fair form destroys.

They are sleeping! Who are sleeping?
Misers, by their hoarded gold;
And in fancy now are heaping
Gems and pearls of price untold.
Golden chains their limbs encumber,
Diamonds seem before them strown;
But they wake from their slumber;
And the splendid dream is flown.

They are sleeping! Who are sleeping?
Pause a moment, softly tread;
Anxious friends are fondly keeping
Vigils by the sleeper's bed.
Other hopes have all forsaken—
One remains—the slumber deep—
Speak not, lest the slumberer wake
From that sweet, that saving sleep.

They are sleeping! Who are sleeping?
Thousands who have passed away,
From a world of woe and weeping,
To the regions of decay.
Safe they rest, the green turf under;
Sighing breeze, of music's breath,
Winter's wind, or summer's thunder,
Cannot break the sleep of death!

Thd Arkansas Traveler.

This third turned up a short time ago on board of one of the splendid steamers which traverse the lower Mississippi. The Henderson Democrat gives the following amusing account of his marriage: "Early this morning there were added to our company of travelers a pair who looked very much like runaways; the gentleman a tall, raw-boned specimen of the 'half horse and half alligator' class, and the lady a fair match for him. Among the passengers from Napoleon is a solemn-looking gentleman, who has all along been taken for a preacher. About 9 o'clock last night I was conversing with the 'reverend' individual, when a young man stepped up, and addressing him, remarked, 'we're going to have a wedding, and would like to have you officiate.'"

"All right, sir," he replied, laughingly, and we stepped into the ladies' cabin, when sure enough, the couple stood waiting. There had been some 'kissing games' and several mock marriages gone through with during the evening, and I supposed that this was merely a continuation of the sport; and so thought the 'preacher,' who I could see, had a good deal of humor in him, and was inclined to promote general good feeling and merriment. The couple stood up before him. (A good deal more solemn than was necessary in a mock marriage, I thought,) and the 'preacher' asked the necessary questions, and then, proceeding in the usual way, pronounced them 'husband and wife.' There was a good deal of fun afterwards, and when it was over I left the cabin—and so did the 'preacher,' who remarked to me that he liked to see the young folks enjoying themselves, and took a deal of pleasure in contributing to their fun; but he did not understand why they should select him to act the preacher. Just then some one called me aside, and the old gentleman stepped into his state-room, which was next to mine. "When I returned, the door stood open, and the 'preacher' stood just inside, with his coat and vest off, and one boot in his hand, talking with the gentleman who had played the 'attendant,' and who, as I came up, remarked: "Well, if that's the case it is a good joke for they are in dead earnest, and have retired to the same state-room." The old gentleman raised both his hands as he exclaimed: "Good Heavens! you don't tell me so!" and rushing, just as he was, boot in hand, to the state-room indicated, commenced an assault on the door as if he would batter it down, exclaiming at each lick: "For Heaven's sake don't! I ain't a preacher!" The whole cabin was aroused, every state-room flying open with a slam, when the door opened, and the 'Arkansas traveler,' poking out his head, coolly remarked "Old boss, you're late!"

THE RAM THAT BUTTED THE CROWBAR.—I was once staying at a farm in Berkshire county, the owner of which was sadly troubled by his dog Wolf killing his sheep. I determined to cure the dog. There was a ram on the farm as notorious for butting as the dog was for sheep stealing, and who stood as much need of moral suasion as the dog. I shut Wolf up in the barn with this old fellow, and the consequence was that the dog never looked a sheep in the face again. The ram literally broke every bone in his body. Wonderfully uplifted with the ram afforded by his exploit, he was sure to pitch into who-soever went nigh him. "I'll fix him," said I; and so I did. I rigged an iron crowbar of a hole in the barn, point foremost, and hung him old hat on the end of it. You can't always tell when you see a hat whether there is a head in it or not; how then should a ram? Arise made it all full butt; but being a good marksman from long practice, the bar broke in between his horns, and came out at the end of his tail. This little admonition effectually cured him of butting.

Our merits procure us the esteem of men of sense, and our good fortunes that of the public.
